

Dear Recruiter,

I am a talented, passionate, and quick learner. I am a very hard working person, who is looking to come back to the workforce. I have a degree that was focused on statistics and am interested in a job that utilizes and sharpens my analytics skills. My focus is to get the right job experience that will shape my career in the long term. If my qualifications are not best for this job posting, I will be open to exploring other opportunities that might be available in your organization.

Thanks for your consideration,
